LONDON, May 25—Allied aerial bombardments of Germany have reduced by at least one-fifth the production of Reich war industries, the British Ministry of Economic Warfare said today.

Statistics of the ministry show that German heavy industries and armament works attained their production peak in May of 1941. Since then, it was said, this production has been reduced, if anything, more than 20 percent.

The calculation of a 20 percent paralysis of Nazi industry does not include the damage wrought in the terrific blasting administered yesterday to the Ruhr city of Dortmund nor the devastation caused in the Ruhr valley by floods loosed by the recent blasting of the Moehne and Ederdams.

"Worth Trying"

These significant figures lent emphasis to Prime Minister Winston Churchill's pronouncement in Washington last week that the "experiment" to bomb the Axis out of the war was worth trying.

Despite the considerable efforts to which the Nazis have gone to comb out labor recruits in occupied countries there has been no change in replacement of workers to the 1941 level, it was said.

The continued bombings and the labor scarcity makes it impossible for the present for the Germans to remedy the crippling reductions, it was pointed out.

It was explained that it is impossible to compute exactly the number of factories put out of commission and therefore the toll of lessened production may easily be higher.

The huge Krupp armament works at Essen has suffered continuously throughout the war and Essen itself to date is the most devastated city in Germany.

Problems Pile Up

Not only the damage to factories, but also the destruction of workers' homes and their means of transportation lessens the output of the industries.

Pearl Harbor Battleships Rise From Watery Grave
To Wreak Revenge On Japs Who Sent Them There

OUT of the murky waters of Pearl Harbor, scene of Japan's famous and ill-starred stab-in-the-back attack, come three more United States battleships, their wounds healed or rapidly healing. Top photo shows the battleship Oklahoma, which had been capsized being righted, five of her 14-inch guns appearing above the waterline for the first time since the "Day of Infamy," December 7, 1941. At

For Army Now

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 25.—The United and Associated Nations represented at the international food conference today were suffering from a severe case of shock induced by Russia's blunt insistence that getting the next meal for the Red army is more important than long-range planning.

Presenting a composed diplomatic face to the world, the Chinese pronounced the Soviet statements of policy and questions of notable pointedness "very interesting."

The British were inclined to linger long over the Russian declaration that long-term credits will be needed for economic reconstruction on the grounds that therein lies yet another proof of USSR good-will. For the past decade or more, the British explained, Russia has asked for credit strictly on a very short term basis and paid off in full when the note came due.

Additional Rainfall Adds To Gravity Of Local Corn Situation

Seriousness of the corn planting situation was emphasized Tuesday when rain continued to sweep over Pickaway county, keeping farmers from their fields.

The county AAA office which keeps a close check on the agricultural situation pointed out that "any number of big corn planters have not yet put their crop into the ground." Unless planting can be completed soon danger of a frost which would keep the crop from maturing becomes more grave.

Corn Hard Hit

"Certain varieties of hybrids, and other types of corn face a serious situation," Wilbur Brinker of the AAA office said Tuesday after another inch of rain fell during the night. Brinker pointed to possibility of an early fall destroying much of the corn which must be planted at much later date than usual because of the continued wet weather.

AAA office estimates that about 80,000 acres of Indian corn were to be planted this year in addition to about 4,000 acres of sweet corn for canning plants. The percentage of corn already planted is very small, the office pointed out, although it has no way to estimate the amount remaining to be planted.

Corn planted late in April and early in May when several fair planting days were enjoyed is now doing well, the AAA reports, although weeds which cannot be removed because of the wet weather are filling many fields.

Corn Planting Delayed

Planting of soybeans is delayed also, this crop which is growing in importance each year usually being in the ground by this time. Farm observers added a bit of brightness to the general situation by declaring that the rain is excellent for pastures, wheat, oats and peas.

Rain fell in Circleville Tuesday for the sixteenth day this month, the total during the night and up to 8 a. m. Tuesday was .97 of an inch, sending the total rainfall for the month to 5.55 inches. May's rain is nearly two and (Continued on Page Two)

STRIKE TOTAL

In Rubber Industry
Now Are Idle

AKRON, O., May 25—Production neared a complete standstill today in three of the nation's major rubber companies as most of 6,000 men in one shift at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company refused to return to work.

The strike, which started Saturday and spread rapidly throughout Akron's vast war-vital rubber industry, had thrown an estimated 44,000 or more out of work today.

Goodyear company officials said that only a scattering few of 6,000 on last night's late shift showed up for work. Free for all, riot fights developed at the previous shift between pickets and employees attempting to report for work at the Goodyear No. 1 plant.

When Hugh Callahan, 18, and Eugene Coffey, 16, admitted that they had turned in several false alarms, Police Recorder Sar Mischiara became a very practical judge.

BENES PREDICTS
ITALY TO QUIT
IN FEW MONTHS

CHICAGO, May 25—Italy right now is just about through and will bow out of the world war when the Allies begin stepping up the Mediterranean offensive, Edward Benes, president of the Czechoslovakian government in exile, predicted today.

President Benes declared in a Chicago address that the war in Europe is in its final phases, with Italy probably throwing in the sponge within a few months and Germany within a year. Insurrections in German-occupied territories will continue to the collapse of the Nazis, he said, adding:

"I expect that the military and political disaster of Japan will come very soon after these events.

We all must contribute effectively to the collapse of the dictator."

That's the way it is eh? Fine stuff!

NEW YORK, May 25—Members of the Polish underground have shot another high Nazi official who had a high position in the German labor office in Warsaw, the British radio reported today.

NEW YORK, May 25—With a three-fold purpose in mind, the C.I.T. Credit Corporation today had a plan under which automobile owners can trade in their old cars as part down payments for new cars to be delivered after the war.

President Arthur O. Dietz said the plan, devised after the O.P.A. banned non-essential driving in the Eastern states, would:

1—Help automobile dealers

build up a large volume of potential war business;

2—Provide cars now for war workers who need transportation, and

3—Relieve car owners, who trade in their vehicles in part payment on new ones, of upkeep expenses during the emergency when their use is banned.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 25—A fine of $750 or sixty days in jail was imposed today on Thomas F. Keefer, gasoline filling station owner at Corning, N. Y. Keefer, who pleaded guilty in a federal court sold gasoline to "anyone" the government charged as long as the buyer was willing to pay five cents a gallon extra. No ration coupons were needed at Keefer's station, it was charged.

NEW YORK, May 25—As many as 2,000 New York restaurant owners, "panicky over the muddled food situation," are considering closing for the duration, Paul Henkel, president of the Society of Restaurateurs, revealed today. "The entire industry is in a state of panic, similar to the one that prevailed 10 years ago when the banks were closed," Henkel said. (Continued on Page Two)

Flood swollen rivers carved a wider path of vast destruction in six Midwest states today, giving rise to new fears that the breadbasket of the nation would not be able to meet its wartime crop goals.

In Illinois alone, where new high water damage points were opened up along the Mississippi and Illinois rivers, a total of 1,257,698 acres of crop land has been flooded. Estimates by Dean H. P. Rusk of the University of Illinois college of agriculture showed that 368,474 acres of wheat, corn and oats have been destroyed in the state.

NINE TARGETS FEEL FURY OF YANKEE AIRMEN

Four Vessels Sunk And Eight Hard Hit In Furious Assault

navy did not know where the two waves of Jap bombers which attacked Attu Saturday and Sunday were based.

"We don't know where they came from," Knox said. "A supposition is that they came from Japanese bases in the Kuriles."

For the first time, Knox disclosed that the navy's famous Sea Bees were operating on Attu, getting supplies to the American soldiers.

Knox refused to interpret the fact that the Japs were sending bombers over Attu. Nor would he venture a guess as to whether it meant that the enemy will attempt a counter-invasion.

Knox was asked to comment on Japanese reports that the enemy had sunk an American battleship, a cruiser, and other U. S. vessels off Attu.

"It's another Jap fishing expedition," Knox said in dismissing the Tokyo claims.

Japs Strike Back

The Japanese struck back at the Yank invaders in two air attacks in an obvious attempt to slow down or check America's Aleutian offensive.

Secretary Knox also declared that the American anti-submarine warfare in the Atlantic is making "very encouraging" progress.

"But you must remember," Knox continued, "that type of warfare goes by fits and starts, and ups and downs."

Knox, asked for comment at a news conference on the Atlantic warfare, declared:

"The submarine thing is going along very nicely. It is very satisfactory. It is very encouraging."

Meanwhile a strong force of high-flying allied warplanes streaked across the English channel today for new assaults on battered Europe as harried Nazi officials strove to bring order out of chaos in bomb-blasted and food-ravaged Dortmund, Ruhr industrial city where 37,000 persons were reported homeless as a result of the RAF's devastating raid yesterday.

Reports out of Europe said the ruins of Dortmund were still aflame late yesterday as ambulances and mobile kitchens streamed into the city from all parts of the Reich.

Duce Handicapped

Dispatches from inside Europe today said Mussolini's preparations for defense of the Italian mainland against invasion indicated that he can expect little or no help from Germany. Hitler is said to have refused Il Duce's insistent demands for aid from the Nazi air force following Allied aerial attacks which reduced Italian airfields to heaps of smashed Axis planes.

Evacuation of civilians from danger areas on the Italian mainland was reported speeded up and Italian troop reserves were said to be transferring to the "invasion coasts" from inland garrisons.

More bad news for the Axis appeared in the making in Russia. The Moscow radio today quoted a high-ranking Communist official as saying "decisive events" were shaping up on the Russian front and that the current comparative lull in the fighting there was about to end.

Reds Stop Nazis

Moscow reported the Red army yesterday decisively repulsed three thrusts by Nazi forces apparently aimed at finding a weak spot in preparation for an expected German offensive. A communiqué said the German attacks were thrown back in the Donets basin west of Rostov, in the Svezk area of the southern front and on the central front west of Moscow.

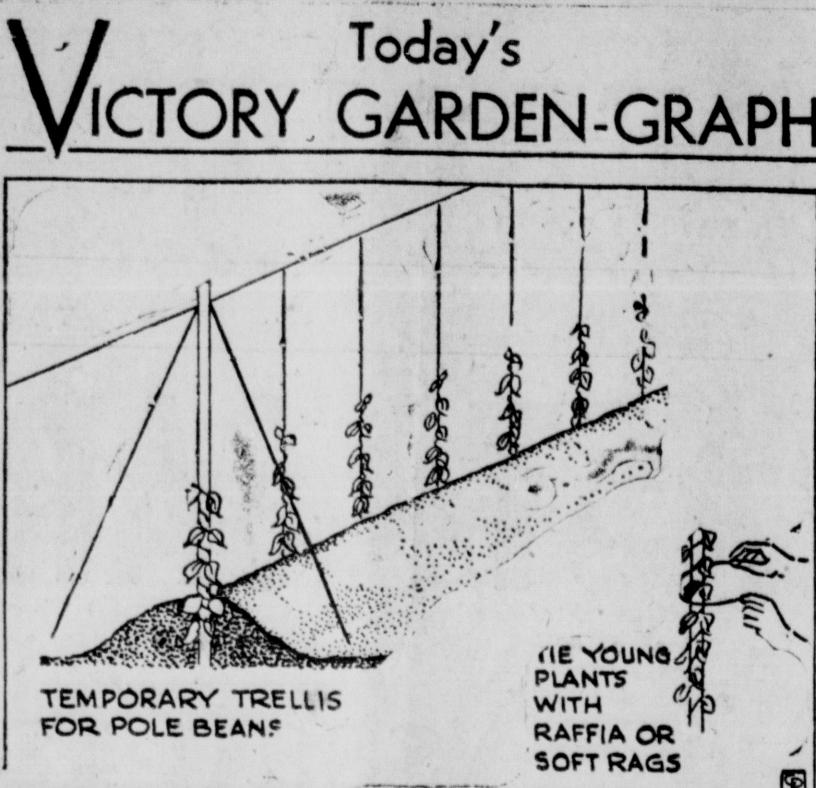

In the South Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced new blows at Jap bases north of Australia. Allied heavy bombers dropped 16 tons of bombs on grounded planes at three airfields and a seaplane base at Rabaul, New Britain, setting fires visible 100 miles. Also hit were the Penfao airfields on the Jap-held island of Timor, where more huge fires were ignited, and the Nip airfield at Gasmata, New Britain, attacked for the 13th straight day.

one-half inch above the month's average over a 27 year period. Leroy Hawks of the sewage disposal plant, where weather records are kept, said that May reports for the last 27 years show the average rainfall to be 3.83 inches. May has nearly a week to go, so it is possible that the May, 1943, reading may rival the highest on record for the month, 7.5 inches in 1935.

Scioto river despite the heavy local rains is remaining fairly normal after being out in the bottom lands for several days last week.

Pole Beans Practical in Small Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

MANY GARDENERS have the mistaken impression that pole beans require far too much space to be included in a small Victory garden. The truth is that pole beans are practical and profitable and, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, temporary trellises can easily be made of stout cord, wire and a few supports. The posts can be set from 15 to 20 feet apart. Wire is stretched between the posts, one strand placed near the soil and the other strand six feet high. Cord is strung between the wires, one foot apart, as illustrated.

When the young plants are about two to three weeks old, tie them to the cords, or stakes (if used) with raffia or strips of soft rag, as illustrated.

SALVAGE DRIVE MOVING AHEAD IN FARM AREAS

LOAN CAMPAIGN CHIEF PRAISED BY JOHN McCOY

Harry Roese of South Bloomfield, president of the Pickaway County Township Trustees' association and a leader in the rural scrap salvage campaign, said Tuesday that the drive is moving ahead in the county area although activity has been rather light up to this time.

The campaign started May 15 and is to continue until June 15. During that time it is hoped that rural areas will produce 1,200 tons to be added to 600 tons already collected to make up the county's quota of 1,800 tons for the first half of the year.

"Please accept my heartiest congratulations for this successful war finance effort," Mr. McCoy wrote to the local chairman. "I know that it was not easy to mobilize this amount of money in a three-week campaign. I know that you and the volunteer members of your organization gave generously of your time and efforts to complete this assignment."

The trustee chief said he had accounted for about 10 tons being awarded to Pickaway county for its work in the campaign.

"When the final story of this war is written," Mr. McCoy wrote, "one of the brightest chapters will tell of the great contribution made by War Bond sellers and War Bond buyers. I hope that these patriotic citizens will accept this county award as a personal tribute to their sacrifices and their efforts."

FISCHER ATTENDS MEET OF WAR CHEST CHIEFS

Frank Fischer, Circleville school superintendent and chairman of the Pickaway county Community Chest, attended a state-wide meeting Monday of the National War Fund Organization in the Seneca Hotel, Columbus. All Community Chest activities throughout the country are being organized under the National War Fund program.

Mr. Fischer said the N.W.F. plans to raise $125,000,000 during the next year to cover all war time subscriptions with the exception of Red Cross.

Speakers at the state-wide session included Joseph C. Grew, ambassador to Japan prior to the war; Governor John Bricker, James L. McConaughy, president of the United China Relief, Inc., and Charles L. Sawyer, Cincinnati.

Mr. Fischer said he was especially impressed by the Grew talk, the former ambassador having spent many years in Nippon. Grew warned that the Japs are prepared for a struggle lasting 100 or more years.

JOHN E. WALTERS RITES HELD AT ELKS HOME

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon in the B. P. O. Elks home, North Court street, for John E. Walters, widely known Circleville township farm operator and former county commissioner. The Elks home was filled by friends and associates of Mr. Walters.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey and members of the Elks lodge, under direction of Dr. O. J. Towers, exalted ruler. Music was provided by members of the Elks lodge.

Burial was made in Forest cemetery.

TOLD TO LEAVE CITY
Findley Foust, 42, of Ironton, was ordered out of Circleville Monday evening after he was arrested in an uptown street on a complaint that he was intoxicated and was panhandling.

said, presently is one of the Germans' greatest headaches. They must produce hundreds each year and these are steadily being blasted in foundries and while in operation on rail lines.

In addition to other damage caused in the last two raids on Essen, the Royal Air Force was estimated to have destroyed 150 locomotives. Their importance warrants the same priority given by the Germans to production of tanks and submarines.

Destruction of Reich industry in March of this year far exceeded anything yet achieved and, as has been officially stated, it is planned to increase these bombardments steadily.

Available information, according to the Economic Warfare Ministry, proves that the Nazis can do little about the vulnerability of Ruhr valley industry. They are unable to transfer the Krupp works or any other heavy industry factories eastward since they are anchored by the coal and iron supplies nearby and present communications.

RAGING FLOODS CUT WIDER PATH

noldsville, Ware, Gale and McClure in Illinois were threatened with inundation. Approximately 50,000 acres of farm land lay in the path of the rolling flood waters.

About 50 amphibian army jeeps were rushed to the area to help evacuate marooned residents. The town of McClure already had been partly evacuated.

Another flood threat appeared at Meredosia in Morgan county, where the Illinois river broke through the levees for the first time.

An additional 10,000 acres of farmland were in the path of the flood waters. More than 30,000 acres of land in the Meredosia area already were under water.

The death toll in the stricken areas totaled at least 30 since the flood began spilling over the levees three weeks ago. Eight deaths attributed to the flood occurred in the St. Louis area and five in Illinois.

Major Gen. Eugene Rebold, chief of the U. S. army engineers who completed an aerial survey of the flood area, said the high waters have caused "tremendous damage to agricultural lands as well as to transportation and communication lines."

GAS SHORTAGE IN EAST BLOW TO WAR EFFORT

By International News Service
The critical shortage of gasoline hit the public and the war effort hard in eastern states today.

With pleasure drivers losing their cards in many areas, thousands of commuters in New England were late for work, many of them in war factories, due to unprecedent demands on public transportation facilities.

New England's bus lines were hardest hit. More than 150,000 weekly bus miles have been eliminated and war workers and other commuters jammed remaining facilities. School buses serving at least a dozen Eastern Massachusetts communities were discontinued.

Some bus companies eliminated sale of long-distance tickets where other facilities were available and discontinued "extra sections" which have been run to care for unprecedented demands.

The cut in bus mileage was made necessary by an ODT order extending from July 1 to July 27 their second quarter T gasoline coupons.

District offices of the Office of Price Administration, meanwhile, cracked down hard on violators of the most recent ban on pleasure driving. Several thousand motorists were stopped in New York City alone and police immediately began picking up a card of motorists found wilfully neglecting to adhere to the ban.

The man at the next desk says he's always noticed that May queens seldom have much difficulty in becoming June brides.

SOVIET DEMAND SHOCKS PARLEY

they wish to reintroduce and cooperate in return to the comparative international amity blazed by the last war and miserably ground under heel during the past twenty years," a spokesman for the British delegation stated.

Other delegations attending the conference with or without intentions of taking home something for their national cupboards, appeared to be amused and a little awed by the Soviet honesty in admitting that not all the problems under consideration at the Hot Springs parley interest the USSR.

Russians Serious

Great believers in keeping the light fantastic confined to the ballet, the Russians have nullified the hectic efforts of the United States and Great Britain to keep this first international conference on the trolley leading directly to long-range post-war planning. While agreeing that the conference has been called to draft "a number of coordinated measures on the basis of an exchange of views on consumption levels, production and distribution of food," the Russian delegation turned squarely to the question of how the Red army is going to be fed now.

USSR Chairman Alexey D. Krutikov also told the conferees that Russia was going to need a lot of money, time and aid from the Allies in straightening out the mess made by the Nazis in the Ukraine and other agricultural areas overrun by Hitler's invaders.

No Word Miners

No word—miners or sweet-talkers, the Russians went on to declare that the idea and the goals of the initial international conference were very nice, but reminded the gentlemen that resolutions are not edible.

Any international organization created at the parley "will have to take care that the decisions of the conference are carried out" said Soviet Chairman Krutikov. Russia wants assurance that no one is going to profit in food when the post-war shortages put food in the class with rubles.

Gray told the 28th annual convention of the National Association of Purchasing Agents that the capacity for production and transporting coal is limited by manpower and equipment difficulties.

He said that the fuel must be kept moving from the mines to consumers at full capacity all of the time in order to be able to produce and distribute the estimated 600,000,000 tons of bituminous coal that will be required this year.

The deputy fuels chief said that preliminary inspection of reports from a current survey indicates that many industries are dangerously low in their stocks with some literally living on a "hand-to-mouth" basis, with 10 days' or less supplies.

The full board explained its action with the statement that the larger increase would be higher than that permitted under the Little Steel formula.

Hope for an early settlement of the strike came in the report that heads of the three affected Akron locals had gone to Washington expecting to confer with officials of the War Labor Board and perhaps with Philip Murray, head of the CIO.

TRAIN BOYS FOR JOBS

BLOOMFIELD, N. J.—Sixteen year-old youths are being trained to step into the shoes of drafted war workers. Faced with a mounting manpower shortage, the Westinghouse Electric Company lamp division has lowered apprentice requirements to provide skilled mechanics and future supervisors.

Boys must have completed three years of high school study or its equivalent to qualify, according to John E. Fox, Westinghouse supervisor of training.

Some bus companies eliminated sale of long-distance tickets where other facilities were available and discontinued "extra sections" which have been run to care for unprecedented demands.

The cut in bus mileage was made necessary by an ODT order extending from July 1 to July 27 their second quarter T gasoline coupons.

VAST AIR PROGRAM

IS THE long-awaited "second-front" to be aerial rather than terrestrial? It almost seems so from recent British-American operations, and from the current increase of bombing power and effectiveness. Britain has a great air fleet and the United States has a far greater one, with almost unlimited capacity for production.

A few months ago it would have seemed idle to raise such a question. It was assumed that while air power was a great arm of offense, as demonstrated in North Africa, ground power was primary and basic. But so much military devastation has been accomplished lately over Germany, in the destruction of war factories and power dams and the smashing of key cities, that there seems to be a tendency to postpone land invasion for the present.

This might be only a shrewd attitude, meant to deceive the enemy and then proceed with a great land thrust combined with overhead power. But land invasion is such a vast and complex enterprise that obviously it would not be undertaken if the job could be done without it.

At any rate, United Nations air power now grows so overwhelming, while German air power weakens, that the war obviously enters a new phase. This is mainly the form taken by the American war effort, at least. American plane production is being stepped up enormously. Many billions are voted for a new program and a great aerial army is coming into action. It will be worth watching.

FEEDING THE WORLD

THE National Opinion Research Center, conducted by the University of Denver, has been conducting a nation-wide survey as to whether Americans are willing to continue food rationing after the war to feed other countries. It finds that 92 percent of them are willing to feed the world for five years—except Japan.

Although 75 percent thought we should ship food to the Germans, 65 of every 100 Americans would either let the Japanese starve or pay for their food.

These figures show a fine willingness to share food, and to go on living on less ourselves in order that other nations, even including many of our enemies, should be fed. But they also show a lack of understanding of the problem. The hungry nations need food, but ask no charity. They expect to pay.

The Germans and Japanese who most need to be fed are those who are least guilty. The small children and the feeble old folks neither planned the war nor fought it. The children are those in whom rests the hope of education for a more peaceful and friendly world. The war lords in both countries, the military caste, who wanted the war and have fought it so cruelly, will be least likely to starve.

There is also this point—feeding for five years after war may not be necessary. Two years of seedtime and harvest, with

CHURCHILL REALIZES DREAM

WASHINGTON—Only his close friends know it, but the four different trans-Atlantic conferences which Winston Churchill has held with Roosevelt are the fruition of a ten-year-old dream.

In 1933, Churchill, then not in the Cabinet, in fact a frequent thorn in the side of the Cabinet, was spending a week end at his country home. Week end visitors included Jimmy Roosevelt, son of the newly elected President of the United States and Kay Halle, Cleveland radio commentator.

After dinner the Churchill family and guests played the game of asking what each person would like most to do in the world if he could have his wish. Younger members of the family were being cross-examined by Churchill when suddenly Miss Halle turned the tables and asked him what he would most like to do.

Without a moment's hesitation, Churchill flashed back:

"I should like to be Prime Minister of England."

At that time he had held most of the important jobs in the Cabinet. He had been Minister War, First Lord of the Admiralty, Minister of Colonies, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Minister of Munitions, Home Secretary and Head of the Board of Trade. But he had never been Prime Minister.

"And if I were Prime Minister," Churchill continued, "and if I had the right man in the White House to work with, one thing I should do would be to hold regular trans-Atlantic conversations with the President of the United States. I would forgo between the United States and the British Empire a real alliance, an inseparable partnership."

Later Churchill sketched on a piece of paper pictures of the American dollar bill inter-twined with the British pound sterling note.

"Give that to your father," he said to Jimmy Roosevelt. "And tell him that working together we can make the pound sterling and the dollar rule the world. We can establish a new currency."

"What would you call it?" asked Jim.

"I would call it," replied the man who ten years later was to see a great deal of Jimmy Roosevelt's father, "I would call it, the 'Sterling Dollar.'"

CHURCHILL REHEARSES

No one in the crowd which jammed the House of Representatives to hear the Prime Minister of England last week ever would have dreamed that privately Churchill enlivens the oratory of his son Randolph.

When the PM first entered the House, the crowd was a bit aloof. The spectators sat back in their chairs. But as he warmed to his speech, they leaned forward, until every member of Congress was heartily with him.

However, Churchill says that he wishes he could speak with the same extemporaneous facility as his son. Actually, the Prime Minister has to rehearse his speeches carefully. Like another great orator, William the men now fighting engaged in tilling the soil, may be enough, if seed enough can be furnished, to get the countries established in growing their own foods.

If any other country is looking for a boss just now, a lot of Americans would be willing to lend John L. Lewis on easy terms.

For Tuesday, May 25

JUDGING BY the lunar aspects for this day there may be a definite trend toward stabilizing the affairs. There should be substantial rewards, with proper emoluments for labor well done and for faithful service, in any department of life. Old friends and new should show preferences.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be at the threshold of a year of gratifying recognition. Keep busy in organizing new business, but with due vigilance to schemes or intrigues. Home matters should share the profits.

A child born on this day should have sound abilities, keen in organization and systems. All combining to win sound and sound fortunes. Luck also figures and rewards from friends.

The moral seems to be—

"Don't eat at the government's food counters."

The District of Columbia's record of juvenile delinquency likewise is alarming. No less an authority than Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has issued an appeal to social workers to deal with the juvenile problem in war industrial areas. Washington isn't exactly war INDUSTRIAL, but surely it's a war issue.

Outside advices into Washington from elsewhere, indicate that all our industrial centers are afflicted much as the capital is, but Washington seems to be the nucleus of 'em.

A few things, though, it was permissible for him to refer to, rather guardedly.

The town's so crowded that there's scarcely standing room for all its visitors plus its normal quota of inhabitants. There aren't sleeping quarters or restaurant accommodations. There's no transportation, either. Even the sidewalks are jammed until pedestrians are elbowing into the roadways, and in the latter they're in imminent danger of death under automobiles. ### Vitamin Loss Is Small When Food Is Canned methods used destroyed a good deal of the vitamin C. The American Can Company have written me that they do not consider this quite a fair statement and I am happy to modify it and bring it down to date.

It should be said at the beginning that canning or preserving foods does not detract from their nutritive value in respect to the amount of energy-producing food elements—starches, sugars and fats—or the tissue-building elements—proteins. Nor are vitamins A, D or E affected by heat.

Only part of the vitamin B is affected. So these elements are retained no matter how careless the preserving is.

Preserving Vitamins

Vitamin C is unstable in the presence of heat, but if cooked in a vacuum, this loss is prevented. I am informed by the American Can Company that commercial canners, both large and small, have quite universally adopted scientific methods which preserve the heat-labile B and C vitamins.

The commercial preparations are likely to be higher in vitamin content than foods preserved by home methods.

In restaurants where cooked vegetables are kept hot for considerable periods the loss of vitamin C is likely to be considerable, and there is loss when cooked vegetables are allowed to stand at room temperature. All canned goods suffer some loss when stored at temperatures of 70° to 80° F. So the old custom of putting them in the nice cool cellar is a piece of instinctive science on grandma's part.

Importance of Juices
In these days when the housewife must make all foods go to the farthest extent, it is well for her to remember that the juices in the can contain significant amounts of vitamins. In a study of a sample lot of canned corn, for instance, the amount of vitamin C in the corn itself was .25 milligrams, while the amount in the can liquid was .33 milligrams,

All substances have a pH. The pH of human blood equals 7.39, which is almost exact neutrality. The pH of lemon juice is 2.5, of vinegar, 3.

E. S.: What is meant by a "spastic" baby?

Answer: Spastic paralysis, in which the muscles are more or less constantly cramped, occurs at birth. The cause is possibly pressure on the brain during birth.

Fortunately the condition is quite rare. By prolonged training the children can be made somewhat better.

VAST AIR PROGRAM

IS THE long-awaited "second-front" to be aerial rather than terrestrial? It almost seems so from recent British-American operations, and from the current increase of bombing power and effectiveness. Britain has a great air fleet and the United States has a far greater one, with almost unlimited capacity for production.

Without a moment's hesitation, Churchill flashed back:

"I should like to be Prime Minister of England."

At that time he had held most of the important jobs in the Cabinet. He had been Minister War, First Lord of the Admiralty, Minister of Colonies, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Minister of Munitions, Home Secretary and Head of the Board of Trade. But he had never been Prime Minister.

"And if I were Prime Minister," Churchill continued, "and if I had the right man in the White House to work with, one thing I should do would be to hold regular trans-Atlantic conversations with the President of the United States. I would go for between the United States and the British Empire a real alliance, an inseparable partnership."

Later Churchill sketched on a piece of paper pictures of the American dollar bill inter-twined with the British pound sterling note.

"Give that to your father," he said to Jimmy Roosevelt. "And tell him that working together we can make the pound sterling and the dollar rule the world. We can establish a new currency."

"What would you call it?" asked Jimmy.

"I would call it," replied the man who ten years later was to see a great deal of Jimmy Roosevelt's father, "I would call it, the 'Sterling Dollar.'"

CHURCHILL REHEARSSES

No one in the crowd which jammed the House of Representatives to hear the Prime Minister of England last week ever would have dreamed that privately Churchill envisions the oratory of his son Randolph.

Although 75 percent thought we should ship food to the Germans, 65 of every 100 Americans would either let the Japanese starve or pay for their food.

These figures show a fine willingness to share food, and to go on living on less ourselves in order that other nations, even including many of our enemies, should be fed. But they also show a lack of understanding of the problem. The hungry nations need food, but ask no charity. They expect to pay.

The Germans and Japanese who most need to be fed are those who are least guilty. The small children and the feeble old folks neither planned the war nor fought it. The children are those in whom rests the hope of education for a more peaceful and friendly world. The war lords in both countries, the military caste, who wanted the war and have fought it so cruelly, will be least likely to starve.

There is also this point — feeding for five years after war may not be necessary. Two years of seedtime and harvest, with the men now fighting engaged in tilling the soil, may be enough, if seed enough can be furnished, to get the countries established in growing their own foods.

If any other country is looking for a boss just now, a lot of Americans would be willing to lend John L. Lewis on easy terms.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

CHURCHILL REALIZES DREAM

WASHINGTON — Only his close friends know it, but the four different trans-Atlantic conferences which Winston Churchill has held with Roosevelt are the fruition of a ten-year-old dream.

In 1933, Churchill, then not in the Cabinet, in fact a frequent thorn in the side of the Cabinet, was spending a week end at his country home. Week end visitors included Jimmy Roosevelt, son of the newly elected President of the United States and Kay Halle, Cleveland radio commentator.

After dinner the Churchill family and guests played the game of asking what each person would like most to do in the world if he could have his wish. Younger members of the family were being cross-examined by Churchill when suddenly Miss Halle turned the tables and asked him what he would most like to do.

Without a moment's hesitation, Churchill flashed back:

"I should like to be Prime Minister of England."

At that time he had held most of the important jobs in the Cabinet. He had been Minister War, First Lord of the Admiralty, Minister of Colonies, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Minister of Munitions, Home Secretary and Head of the Board of Trade. But he had never been Prime Minister.

A New Dinner Neckline

The fabric for this simple but devastating Summer evening frock is sheer black crepe.

THE best of the lower necklines cut out of short frocks, in the hope of making them look like evening costumes, is sketched here. That's this department's notion anyway, after consideration of the drop shoulder, the peasant scoop, the childish Dutch square, and so on.

Back and front cutout are identical . . . a line we can call "sloping" for lack of a better word. The bodice fits nicely over the torso, the soft skirt ditto by use of pleats at the center front.

Not set-in sleeves, but extensions of the bodice fabric cover the shoulders, finished with a twist of self fabric to give the effect of casual tying. Frilled black lace finishes the frock and sash edges.

Political Front In Circleville Quiet As Filing Deadline Nears

ELECTION BOARD AWAITS FIRST OFFICE PETITION

Only Contest Indicated To Date To Be Between Gordon And Cady

COUNCIL POSTS OPEN

Charles Kirkpatrick Seen As Possible Republican Mayor Candidate

With less than three weeks remaining before the deadline for filing nominating petitions for Circleville municipal offices, the political pot in the county seat has not even started to warm up. Usually by this time activity has become noticeable.

The deadline for filing petitions is June 11, just two weeks from next Friday, but as yet not a single nominating petition has been filed with the county board of elections.

Only contest on the primary ticket to date is that between Mayor Ben H. Gordon and former Mayor William B. Cady for Democratic nomination for mayor.

Both men, who opposed each other in the primary two years ago, have obtained petitions, but neither has yet visited the election board office, placing himself officially in the race.

Petitions Are Out

Several Democrats have obtained petitions for various city offices, Miss Lillian Young, auditor, circulating her nomination petition, and Milton B. Kellstadt, a candidate for nomination for treasurer, also entering the race.

Charles Kirkpatrick, Republican city treasurer, has eliminated himself from consideration for office, announcing that he would not even run for reelection as treasurer. Kirkpatrick is serving his first term. Some Republicans expressed belief that Kirkpatrick might be induced to run for the nomination for mayor, but he removed all possibility of this step by stating definitely that he didn't intend to run for any office this year.

So far no candidate has entered the field for solicitor, president of council or for any ward council job. Only one candidate has announced he would run for councilman-at-large, that being Oscar Root, Washington street. He has obtained a petition.

Council Seats Available

That several seats in council may be available for newcomers is indicated by developments of the last week. W. E. Wallace, baker, resigned last Wednesday night, declaring that his business requires all of his time. Mr. Wallace eliminated himself from running for another term by his action. He was filling the unexpired term of Clarence Helvering, present service director and acting safety director.

In addition there is a possibility that the post held by Councilman-at-Large Frank A. Lynch may be open. Mr. Lynch, who has been in poor health for some months, has indicated to council colleagues that he would like to resign, but has been induced to remain at least until the end of the term. However, it is almost certain that unless his health soon improves to a marked degree he will not again seek office.

Council is expected to name a successor to Mr. Wallace at its meeting next week. Whether the person selected will run for office depends largely on how much he likes the council work.

With Mr. Wallace out and Mr. Lynch not likely to be a candidate, W. M. Reid remains as the only councilman-at-large who might run again. He, too, was appointed to a vacancy, taking his seat after Byron Eby resigned when he removed from the city.

None of the ward councilmen has given any indication of his plans for the next two years. Council's work this year has been rather hectic with many problems, two of the foremost being Berger hospital and the time schedule, keeping councilmen very busy. Because of press of other business it is possible that one or maybe more of the present ward council corps will not run.

In council from the four wards are J. Donald Mason, Ward 1; Julius Helwagen, Ward 2; George L. Critts, Ward 3, and Boyd Horn, Ward 4.

With the filing deadline approaching, it is likely that the political pot will start bubbling during the next few days.

EMERGENCY LINE COMPLETE AND OIL FLOWS AGAIN

An emergency line has been completed in the War Emergency Pipelines Inc., line across the Arkansas river and flow of oil from the Longview, Texas, area to Norris City, Ill., has been resumed. The oil is moved from Norris City eastward by tank car, the eastern phase of the big line having not yet been completed.

Flow of oil was stopped last week when the big pipeline was broken by flood waters of the Arkansas river.

Oil was started through the line again Monday night.

Announcement of the speed with which the line was repaired was made by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes after he received a telegram from W. Alton Jones, president of the Emergency Pipelines, that an eight mile emergency pipeline loop around the Arkansas river crossing permitted reestablishment of the full flow to Norris City.

A 20-inch tubing which bypasses the flood break is capable of handling 250,000 barrels of oil daily.

The emergency line was cut in six days and 21 hours after the river opened the line.

IMPORTANCE OF SOYBEAN CITED TO KIWANIS

Importance of the soybean in the nation's war effort was discussed in emphatic style Monday evening at the Kiwanis club meeting when E. F. (Soybean) Johnson, St. Louis, widely known authority on the soybean industry and an official of the Ralston-Purina Co., appeared before the club at its meeting at Hanley's. Mr. Johnson was the guest of Hal Dean and Eldred A. Cayce, local Purina company officials.

Mr. Johnson pointed to the soybean as of great importance in three phases of the war effort, as an oil producer, for use in plastics used to make many airplanes and for its food value.

The speaker declared that the nation's leaders fully recognize the value of the soybean and that steps are being taken to increase the flow of beans to record amounts during the 1943 harvest season.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that last year 20,000,000 bushels of soybeans were used for flour while this year plants throughout the nation will use 400,000,000 bushels.

The Purina company official answered many questions asked by his listeners. The meeting proved to be of much interest.

H. K. (Bill) Lanman, South Court street, manager of the uptown Kroger store, was introduced as a new member of the club.

Next week Joel Backus, general manager of the Silex Co., will speak concerning his firm, Circleville's newest industry.

Wearing Apparel Of Women Now Styled By War Production Board

Control by the War Production Board of all fabrics used in women's clothes resulted Tuesday in a decree which bans manufacture of women's double-breasted suits, limited cuff buttons to two, and restricted in several other changes in wearing apparel.

Under the control decree, the WPB bans dresses with Norfolk or bising backs, epaulets, skating skirts, culottes, reversible or lined or quilted skirts.

Skirts are to have only one pocket, and the number of pockets for every other garment is limited to two.

Use of wools for linings and pockets was lifted, the WPB announcing that it is seeking to encourage increased output of women's and children's clothing out of available cotton, wool and rayon fabrics.

The speaker declared that the nation's leaders fully recognize the value of the soybean and that steps are being taken to increase the flow of beans to record amounts during the 1943 harvest season.

Persons who offered their favorite hunting knives to help soldiers fighting in the wilds of New Guinea, the Solomons, the Aleutians and on other world fronts are asked to call at The Herald office to reclaim the blades and other knives donated in the last couple of weeks.

Ohio Office of Civilian Defense asked local councils to collect knives to be sent into the War zones, but notified council chairman Tuesday that the campaign has been called off. The government is now receiving sufficient knives from manufacturers to arm men in the service.

Trench knives which are made especially for hand-to-hand combat are being provided men wearing Uncle Sam's uniform.

The knives will be returned only to their owners.
